The Return won the 2016 Tribeca Audience Award for Best Documentary. This film explores the intricacies of the Reentry process through the eyes of those on the front lines—prisoners suddenly freed, families turned upside down, reentry providers helping navigate complex transitions, transitions, and attorneys and judges wrestling with the release of hundreds of men and women as a result of reforms in the state of California's California's Three Strike Laws.

After the special screening, we would like to engage in a conversation entitled: How the Collateral Consequences of Incarceration Impacts Young People, Families and Communities. In our effort to raise the voices of resilient young people such as yourself, we are requesting that you participate in this discussion as we continue to re-shape criminal justice reform and reintegration services in Washington, DC.
